For years Monsignor Sharetti has been known as a friend and admirer of Archbishop Corrigan. The most friendly relations exist between The Latest Information in Regard to Some the two men. of the directors of the university will be held. In addition to the routine business there are

number of important matters to come up for consideration and action. THE HALL OF PHILOSOPHY. The new hall of philosophy which is being erected for the university is rapidly approaching completion, and work is being pushed along steadily. It is partly under roof now, and the remainder of the roof will be on in a few weeks. Matters in connection with the completion of this building will come up for consideration at the meeting of the directors. What is more important even than this is that the time has about come when the faculty for the new de-partment of the university must be decided upon. The details as to the course of instruc-tion have been by no means completed yet, but it is fixed that the faculty of the philosophical department at first will consist of about eight or ten men. Of these places five have been practically filled already. The departments of theology and philosophy are to have separate faculties. although they will, of course, be closely and intimately connected. Four of the professors who are now connected with the university and have been for some time will be transferred to the new department as soon as the proper time arrives. Their branches of proper time arrives. Their branches of instruction do not properly lie in the department of theology. These men are: Dr. Pace, who occupies the chair of psychology: Dr. Pohle, the chair of Christian apologetics, pure philosophy in the new department; Dr. Searle, astronomy, and Prof. C. W. Stoddard, literature. It is thought that Judge Robinson, the dean of the Yale law school, will be connected with the new department, occupying the chair of sociology.

THE WORK OF THE SENATE.

It is Practically Finished and Only Awaits a Message From the President. With the exception of the action to be taken on presidential nominations the work of the ex tra session may be said to be completed and the Senate is now awaiting for Mr. Cleveland to announce that he has no further commun cation to make to that body. When the Presi dent sends this message to the Capitol the Sen ate will adjourn without delay.

There is a passive understanding among Senators on both sides of the chamber that no vote will be taken on the contested election | then you are all right and can go about; you know cases at this session, and that this question as well as that of the reorganization of the execu-tive offices will go over until Congress meets tive offices will go over until Congress meets in the fall.

This fact was made more apparent today by the difficulty in obtaining a quorum in the Senate before any business could be transacted. After some time a bare quorum of forty-four Senators answered to their names. Other Senators have made preparations to leave the city at the end of this week and as many of those who are here are paired it is almost a certainty that a vote cannot be taken on anything of importance.

There are still some stories afloat regarding the Roach investigation and the reorganization to the effect that both matters will be pushed before adjournment. But these statements are looked upon as more talk than sincere. A STAR reporter was assured today by members on both sides of the chamber that the Senatewould adjourn as soon as the President signified his desire that they should do so without further action on any of the pending questions. Ar the special meeting of the National Goographic Society, at the Builders' Exchange Priday night, Prof. Wm. H. Brewer will give an illustrated lecture on "Two Visits to Colombo; 1869 and 1882."

trict's Charities Mr. John Tracey of Albany, N. Y., who has been nominated as superintendent of charities in the District to succeed Mr. Warner, is expected to arrive here in a few days, so that in the event of his expected confirmation there may be no unnecessary delay in his assuming the duties of the office. Mr. Tracey is a man of fine education and has had considthe present. Mgr. Satolli is now in Boston, but a Star reporter who called at the university today was informed that he is expected to return tomorrow evening.
